

Bruces Philosophers' song

Słowa, muzyka i wykonanie: Monty Python

1. G Immanuel Kant was a real piss-ant
D who was very rarely stable.
D Heidegger, Heidegger was a boozy beggar
G who could think you under the table.
G David Hume could out-consume
C Schoppenhauer and Hegel.
D And Whittgenstein was a beery swine
G who was just as sloshed as Schlegel.

Ref: || D There's nothing Nietzsche couldn't teach 'ya
|| 'bout the raising of the wrist.
|| G D Socrates, himself, was permanently pissed.

2. G John Stewart Mill, of his own free will
D On half a pint of shanty was particularly ill.
D Plato they say could stick it away,
G Half a crate of whiskey every day.
G Aristotle, Aristotle was a bugger for the bottle,
C And Hoppes was fond of his dram.
D And Rene Descartes was a drunken fart.
G "I drink, therefore I am."

Ref: || D Yes, Socrates himself is particularly missed;
|| G D A lovely little thinker, but a bugger when he's pissed.
